IN ONE PARAGRAPH

The Sexual Violence Prevention Workshop is a 2-hour collaborative, card-based workshop designed to give adults — in workplaces, schools, communities, and healthcare settings — a shared cognitive frame for thinking about sexual violence and its prevention. Created by Sébastien Brochot, a specialist in violence prevention strategy, and published by Association Une Vie (a French non-profit founded over ten years ago), the workshop is available in 15 languages and is run worldwide by an open network of trained facilitators. The card materials are free to download; the full method is documented in the published book.

WHAT MAKES SVPW DIFFERENT

Open access

Cards downloadable in 15 languages under a Creative Commons license. Anyone can read the materials.

Anchored in evidence

Aligned with WHO and UNICEF prevention guidelines. Every card grounded in published research.

Reproducible without expertise

Any adult willing to follow the method can facilitate a workshop. No diploma required.

Non-militant

A reflective approach, not an advocacy campaign. Favours thinking over slogans.

THE FOUNDER

Sébastien Brochot

FOUNDER · WORLDWIDE PRESS CONTACT · AVAILABLE IN ENGLISH AND FRENCH

Sébastien Brochot is a specialist in violence prevention strategy. Over the past decade, he has designed and led multiple prevention programmes — for schools, institutions, and the general public — and authored several publications on the topic.

The Sexual Violence Prevention Workshop is his most recent and most international initiative.

READY-TO-USE QUOTES

« Awareness campaigns inform people. They rarely change behaviour. What changes behaviour is understanding — and understanding requires a frame that adults can walk through together. The SVPW was designed to provide that frame, in two hours, in any language, anywhere in the world. »

— Sébastien Brochot, founder of the SVPW

« We don't believe any workshop will end sexual violence. We believe the gap between awareness and understanding is a leverage point — one that, when filled, makes every other prevention effort more effective. »

— Sébastien Brochot, founder of the SVPW

« The strength of the project is that it can be carried by anyone. You don't need to be a clinician, a psychologist, or a campaigner. You need the book, a small group of adults, and two hours. »

— Sébastien Brochot, founder of the SVPW
